Get Summer Beds Now

In the fall with winter coming on you may "get along" with the old "air-stopping" wood beds.

But a solid high headboard and footboard are not as comfortable in summer as one of those delightfully cool iron and brass beds.

They look delightful in a room full of summer sunshine—with their spotless white enamel and glistening brass.

They give free circulation to the cooling night air currents. Satisfying in appearance, comfort and price.

White and Colored Enamel Beds, brass trimmed, $4.50 up. Special Brass Bed—full size: two-inch Post; six Fillers; dull or polish finish, $13.50.

Other Brass Beds, all prices, up to $50.00.

Rugs That Reduce Temperature

Ben Franklin, one winter day, laid three large squares of cloth side by side on a field of snow.

The cloths were black and red and white.

After a few hours he removed the cloths and found that the snow under the black cloth had been melted completely; under the red cloth the snow was partly melted; under the white cloth the snow was not melted at all.

Black and all dark colors are warm, while white and the lighter tints are cool. They do not hold heat.

Light tinted rugs and draperies, therefore, are delightfully appropriate for summer.

They should be put on like a summer dress. They make you cool and comfortable.

An argument in favor of these summer comforts is their small cost.

Anyone can afford to enjoy this inexpensive luxury of summer things. New arrival of light weight Rugs for warm weather, in "Cresc," "Burns," Fiber and Matting in small and carpet sizes.

"E-Z" Hammock

The Easiest, Most Comfortable Hammock Made.

The E-Z combines in one article the best features found in the ordinary style of Bed Hammocks, and also several new ones.

The body part is made in either Khaki, Green or White, of a strong heavy canvas.

The Back or Windshield has a bar at the top which keeps the canvas smooth and prevents sagging. By a simple adjustment the Windshield may be lowered, the bar making a suitable arm rest. These are both very desirable features.

The seat or bed portion is National spring fabric, galvanized links, attached to a tubing truss frame by helicals, making a very strong, resilient hammock, so easy to the occupant, that from this feature the hammock takes its name.

The E-Z is furnished with soft pad mattress, tufted, covered with either Khaki, Green or Red cloth, as preferred, and has a deep valance, giving a handsome decorative appearance that is very attractive.

There is no canvas under the National Spring bottom to catch and hold dust or dirt.

The truss underbody is curved upwards near each end, so that if desired the hammock may be placed upon the floor and used as a cot.

We anticipate a large sale on this Hammock. We now have this Hammock displayed on our floor on a tube frame, that affords an opportunity of trying the Hammock and realize the comfort obtained. A cordial invitation is extended to one and all to call and inspect.

A little cool just now to talk Hammocks, but get one now and be all ready for the next hot wave.

We also have the best assortment of high-grade Swing Hammocks that we have ever carried. These also are displayed and ready for your inspection.

C. W. Averill & Co. are exhibiting in one of their windows a unique collection of implements and equipment used by Commander Peary on his dash to the pole. The articles are furnished by the Simmons Hardware Co. and are used to advertise the merits of "Keen Kutter" tools and cutlery. Considerable value as well as historical association attaches to the collection, which includes one of the sledges that figured in the memorable trip through the arctic. The sledge was built by the Eskimos from packing boxes and is bound together by walrus thongs. Ivory runners, well worn by their long trips over the ice, are still on the sled. Harpoons, trimmed by walrus and bear teeth, and made by the Eskimos, also form a part of the exhibit. Included also is a large flat bone, thought to be that of a walrus, and the skull of a polar bear. A replica of the "Keen Kutter" tool set chosen by Peary for his last dash is in the center of the collection. The window is attracting much attention and comment.

THAT GOLD MINE

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.

"Abner Day, you are an old fool! You don't know enough to come in when it rains!"

Abner Day, farmer, had heard these words hundreds of times in the fifteen years since he had married the Widow Winters, and his reply had always been the same:

"Waal, some folks are born that way and can't help it."

On a portion of Abner's farm was a range of hills. It was a limestone ridge, but there was a legend that gold had been found there years before—a nugget of gold as big as a teacup. That legend never died. When other news was scarce it was brought to the front, and it was generally believed in. Abner's grandfather had meant to open the hills some day in search of other nuggets. So had his father. So had he. The trouble was to find time. There were plowing and dragging and planting and hoeing and reaping, and he never got a day to himself.

The widow began to poke at him as soon as married, but it did no good. She would go on to tell how many tons of gold were probably hidden away in those hills and how, if dug out, they could have the clock cleaned, a new door to the shed and the cellar stairs repaired.

"I'll get around to it some day, Sarah," he would reply.

"But why not tomorrow?"

"Mebbe I can."

But he didn't. His farm work interfered. As he finished his morning meal the wife would say:

"Now, Abner, that gold mine today. You can dig half a ton of it as well as not, and we need new flatirons and a washboard."

"Yes, I know."

As the day passed and he sat down to supper she would ask:

"Dig any gold today, Abner?"

"Nope. I had other things to see to."

Of course the gold mine legend was gossip for many miles around. Once a month at least some one came along and wanted to dig on shares. They would see the wife first and she would readily agree. All she wanted was that a lawyer should draw up the agreement so that it would hold water. She had been cheated by a lightning rod man once and she didn't propose to be anybody's victim again. She kept a corner of the cellar cleaned out to store the gold in, but it was never used. The stranger would go down into the field and talk with Abner and after he had winced himself he would hear the farmer say:

"These taters has got to be hoed, and you come around some other time."

"But don't you want to be a rich man?"

"It would be kinder nice."

"You could go to Europe."

"Yaas."

"You could build a fine house and have your carriage and servants."

"I see."

"Perhaps you'd be elected governor."

"Shoo."

"And I'll have a lawyer draw up the contract and bring it here tomorrow to be signed. Digging will begin at once. Within a week—"

"Yes, I know, but these taters—"

It was always so, and when Abner scuffed up to the house at sundown it was to find his wife in the sulks or in tears, and she generally ended up with:

"And if you don't go to digging the first thing in the morning I will."

"Think of it—fifteen years of poking

We Are Not Always Right

but we are getting our mistakes so far apart that you will have to watch us pretty closely to detect our errors. We do not intend that you will find us standing still. Every season must show up better than the season before. In order to do that it is necessary for us to turn every mistake into a solid footing for our future success. With us it is a constant study to know where we can get the best values possible for the trade. And in order to do this it is necessary for us to keep in close touch with the market. Through the season you will find that every day brings new values into the departments.
